

My name is Isabelle Rosero. I am a senior and I double majored in Social Work and Sociology.

My parents are military so I kind of wanted to follow that path also and be a commissioned officer in the Army. Being close to Fort Bragg definitely helps. We meet a lot of different people that come here and talk to us and join our program at Fort Bragg. Once again, relationships is always important.

We're really close with a lot of our instructors. And of course they've had time and service in the military so they know what we need to have done to go into the military and what to expect.

Fayetteville State is really diverse. So, you get the best of both worlds as in college life and different people and different organizations that you can be a part of. I mean it's really close to a lot of things here. I mean, I enjoy it.

All I know is bronco pride. My parents are alumni, so it's good to be following in their footsteps and everything in every way.
