

Internships, Study Abroad, Volunteers...Oh My!

For some students, summer means lounging by the pool or watching waves at the ocean. But for Eagles, summers are opportunities to travel and broaden one's perspective through internships, study abroad and volunteering.

Since 2007, North Carolina Central University School of Law has worked with NCCU alumnus Congressman G. K. Butterfield (NC-01) to provide summer internship opportunities for law students in the offices of members of the Congressional Black Caucus.

The work provides students with hands-on experience dealing with federal laws, learning the legislative process, applying their legal training to assist congress members and their staffs.

This summer, four NCCU students interned on Capitol Hill:

KORY SGRIGNOLI
Fort Lauderdale, FL
