Effective fall 2005, the following incentives designed to promote grantsmanship will be in place:

1. Annual fall reception or banquet celebrating faculty and staff members who submitted grant/contract proposals and obtained grants and contracts during the previous fiscal year. (Each person who receives a grant will receive a plaque and a cash award ranging from $150 to $300 each, depending upon the grant amount. Each person who submits a grant proposal that is unfunded will receive a framed certificate and FSU memorabilia.)

2. Summer faculty grants for the purpose of developing proposals—five $3,000 grants. (Each recipient must agree to forego teaching for one summer session and must submit at least one grant proposal for a minimum of $50,000 per year.)

3. Requirement that grants/contracts be included among a number of other criteria for promotion and tenure.

4. Released time (one course for one semester) for two faculty members in each college/school per year to prepare grant proposals. (The required deliverable for each faculty member is at least one grant proposal valued at a minimum of $100,000 annually.)

5. Weeklong grant-writing seminar during summer with stipends for faculty participants. (The required deliverable for each faculty member is at least one grant proposal valued at a minimum of $20,000 per year.)

6. Enhancement of the profile of the Chancellor’s Million Dollar Club through the placement of a plaque listing Club members’ names in a prominent location.

7. Annual #1 Grantsmanship Award and $1,000 bonus to the individual with the highest grant-award total for the previous year.

8. Expectation that each division, each college/school, and each academic department set and achieve specific goals and objectives for grantsmanship each fiscal year.
