Course Objectives

English 120 is designed to help students develop and improve their written abilities in a variety of rhetorical contexts: students will gain fluency and confidence in their ability to make written presentations on a range of contemporary social issues. Students will also become acquainted with the best practices in the various forms of research and documentation.

English 120 is designed to encourage students to do the following:

- 1) Conduct independent research on a topic using various library databases and other research tools
- 2) Summarize, quote, paraphrase and analyze material in relation to multiple sources
- 3) Cite material according to a citation style, preferably APA
- 4) Demonstrate proof of the writing process, including inventing or gathering ideas; research the library catalog, databases, and other tools by keyword or subject searching; planning a draft, writing the first draft; revising; editing; and proofreading.

VI. Course Requirements and Evaluation Criteria

Students will present papers typed and double-spaced, and the papers will adhere consistently to the conventions of Standard Written English (SWE). Students will also demonstrate a clear understanding and application of argumentative and research methods with the appropriate use of format and citations.

The class will use the departmental computer lab in Butler 312 for revising of first draft, using the Criterion resource, and also for on-line research.

Common Rubric for English 120:

In an excellent paper, a student

- Includes and analyzes source material to forward a specific and original purpose; demonstrates evaluation of source material, pointing out strengths and weakness
- Chooses various reliable and credible sources appropriate to purpose
- Selects direct quotations that are almost always suited to purpose
- Incorporates quotation into grammatical structure of the overall sentence
- Accurately paraphrases source material in student's own language
- Accurately cites in-text citations and works cited according to details of MLA style
- Demonstrates revulsion for organization, clarity, and proofreading for conventions of Standard American written English in final draft

In a good paper, a student

- Includes and analyzes source material to forward a purpose; demonstrates evaluation of source material
- Chooses various reliable and credible sources appropriate to purpose
- Selects direct quotations that are often suited to purpose
- Usually incorporates quotation into grammatical structure of the overall sentence
- Paraphrases source material accurately but may be too close to original sentence structure
- Usually accurately cites in-text and works cited according to details of MLA style
- Demonstrates evidence of the writing process in final draft

In an acceptable paper, a student

- Includes and analyzes source material that does not necessarily forward purpose, and repeats source material without evaluation
- Sometimes chooses reliable and credible sources appropriate to purpose; sources may not be varied
- Selects direct quotations sometimes suited to purpose or sometimes uses quotations to the exclusion of original writing
- Sometimes incorporates quotation into grammatical structure of the overall sentence
- Paraphrases misinterpret or misrepresent source material
- Cites in-text or works cited not conforming to APA style
- Demonstrates evidence of the writing process in final draft

In an unacceptable paper, a student

- Rarely includes or analyzes source material that forwards a purpose
- Chooses sources that are unreliable, not credible, not varied, or not suited to purpose
- Rarely selects direct quotations that suit purpose or uses quotations to the exclusion of original writing
- Rarely incorporates quotations grammatically
- Inaccurately or incorrectly cites in-text or works cited according to APA style
- Does not show evidence of the writing process

Grading:

The “A” paper demonstrates strengths in critical thought, rhetorical development, and rhetorical grammar. It also demonstrates fulfillment of the criteria for the writing assignment. It is insightful, engaging, and informative. It is free of grammatical, careless, idiosyncratic or dialectical items. It displays a strong command of Standard American English (SAE), and it demonstrates extensive analysis of the subject matter through research and reflective thought.

The “B” paper demonstrates some strengths of the “A” paper but displays a few key weaknesses. It shows some critical thought and some area of development, but it lacks substantial support for the claims. It may have grammatical or careless errors. It fulfills some of the criteria for the writing assignment, but it is a bit lacking in other areas.

The “C” paper demonstrates strengths in few areas and has more weaknesses than strengths. It lacks in areas of critical thought, rhetorical grammar, and fulfillment of the criteria for the writing assignment.

The “D” paper needs much improvement. It is deficient in areas of critical thought, rhetorical development, and rhetorical grammar. It is especially lacking in fulfillment of the criteria for the writing assignment and displays poor usage of Standard American English (SAE). It shows significant weaknesses in development of the paper.

The “F” paper lacks significant thought and has deficiencies in such things as critical thought, rhetorical development, and rhetorical grammar. It does not appropriately fulfill the writing assignment. It has too many grammatical and careless errors, and it lacks insight. It is poorly prepared and does not fulfill the criteria for the writing assignment.

VII. Academic Support Resources:

Students have at their disposal various support resources, including the online programs Smarthinking and Criterion, and students are urged to consider visiting the University College Writing Center for assistance with their written assignments.

Graded Work:	Film Review	(500 words)	15%
	Website Review	(500 words)	15%
	Summary of Source	(200 words)	15%
	Abstract	(200 words)	5%
	Research Paper	(1,500 words)	30%
	Public Policy	(500 words)	10%
	Classwork		10%

All graded work will be evaluated on a ten-point scale: 90=A, 80=B, 70=C, 60=D.

From time to time the class will write short items in class for stylistic practice and paper drafting, all of which will be used to determine the grade for class work. Each item will be worth no more than 2% of the course total.

Papers must be written in the third person, typed, and handed in no more than one class day late (for a 10% penalty). Students should email only papers that otherwise would be late so their timely reception may be noted, but the professor will not print them. Printed versions of these emailed papers must be handed in the next class the student attends.

If a student chooses to revise a paper, the revision is due the next class day, and the paper grade will be the average between the first and second versions.
