Charlene Allen recently instituted “Friday Fun Songs” in the Business Office in February. Charlene felt like if we took a 10 minute break to get together and sing a fun song together, it would increase morale and end the week on a happy note. Most everyone in the Business Office is now hooked on the Friday Fun Song and actually enjoys coming to work on Friday. We sing the song around 3 or 3:30, which encourages everyone to not leave early on Friday. Some songs we have sang included the themes to Cheers, the Brady Bunch, and Gilligan’s Island, and most recently we kicked it up a notch with Thriller and Proud Mary, including doing the moves to go along with those songs. This is such a great way to build camaraderie in the Business Office and it doesn’t cost us anything. When we are done singing and laughing, we go back to work happy, which in turn makes us more productive. What a great idea!
