

My name is Emily Richards and my major is masters in Education and Reading.

Right now I'm a teacher. I'm an elementary school teacher and I've always wanted to be an Instructional Coach. And in order to be an instructional coach you have to have a master's degree.

I chose Fayetteville State because it was close to home yet it was still affordable. I heard so many positive things about the School (now College) of Education that it was the choice for me.

Dr. Leggett has been more than helpful. There was a time when I was struggling with a case study and she took the time out of her evening after hours to actually sit down and rewrite the case study with me so that I could get it correct.

I would tell them it's a great school. The campus is beautiful. There's so many friendly faces. Everybody is willing to help you. I have never had a negative experience and I think that if you're coming to pursue a higher education it's the place to be.

I got my undergraduate degree here and I'm about to graduate with my masters. I think that just the whole environment is just amazing and uplifting. I think you learn so much and you're more than well equipped for when you go out into the field that you came for. It's been an awesome experience.
