G. Communication

The bachelor of Science in Nursing program is an upper-division course of study requiring students to communicate effectively. Students in this program are expected to demonstrate skill in independent decision-making, professional communication, critical thinking, and problem solving.

Accordingly, the manner in which an applicant/prospective student communicates with the School of Nursing may be considered a potential indicator of the applicant/prospective student's ability to succeed in the BSN program. The School of Nursing seeks to foster the reciprocal benefits of direct communication, which provides an opportunity for the communicator to identify and articulate his/her thoughts, and for the recipient to consider and respond directly to both another person's words and tone.

For these reasons, as well as adherence to FERPA regulation, the school will not discuss an application with a third party.
