

The Wynton H. Hadley Award

Nominate Your Favorite Professor

As part of its spring 2024 Excellence in Teaching Conference, the College of Education will host an awards dinner on Friday, April 12, 2024, at 5 p.m. in the Rudolph Jones Student Center. During the dinner, the Conference planning committee will announce the winners of the Wynton H. Hadley Excellence in Teaching Award. The award is a tribute to the legacy of Dr. Wynton H. Hadley, who as Professor of Education and Assistant Dean in the College of Education, worked tirelessly to promote excellence in teaching and support learning as a gateway to life successes for students of all ages.

The Conference planning committee invites undergraduate and graduate education majors to nominate faculty members who exhibit exceptional teaching skills, demonstrate concern for the welfare of students, and whose teaching has greatly enhanced student learning. Based on student nominations, the College of Education will grant this award to faculty who exhibit excellence in teaching, scholarship, and service.

Please submit a letter of nomination for the one faculty member you view as the model teacher of excellence. The planning committee will accept nomination letters until Friday, March 29, 2024. Please nominate the professor of your choice by sending your letter electronically to Mrs. Debra Brown (ddbrown@uncfsu.edu).

Include the following in your nomination letter:

1. Your Name
2. Major Program of Study
3. Name of the faculty nominee
4. Reasons why you are recommending this faculty member for the award
5. Examples of how their instruction enhanced your learning
6. Explanation of how the faculty demonstrated concern for the welfare of students
